Hawker 700 Latest Addition to FlightWorks Fleet

FlightWorks Continues to Lead in Domestic and International Charter and Management Services.

ATLANTA (March 24, 2006)

FlightWorks, a leading provider of private aviation solutions and services, has recently added a Hawker 700 to its growing fleet. This aircraft is based at McCollum Field in the Atlanta, Georgia metropolitan area.

The Hawker 700 will be placed on FlightWorks Part 135 certificate and managed under the company's FlightWise management program. The Hawker 700 provides spacious seating for 8 passengers, including 5 leather captain chairs and a three-place sofa in a stand-up cabin. Other amenities include a fully equipped forward galley, private aft lavatory and an in-flight accessible baggage and wardrobe storage compartment. In-flight entertainment includes a DVD with individual flat-screen monitors, a CD stereo system and Air Show communications.

The Hawker 700 is a descendant of the Hawker Sidley HS-125, one of the most successful business jet designs, originally developed by De Havilland before the company merged with the Hawker Siddeley Group. The Hawker 700 is recognizable by its low/swept wing with twin rear fuselage mounted engines. It has a highly swept tailplane with high-mounted horizontal stabilizer, and each side of the fuselage has 6 cabin windows. The Hawker 700 cruises at 483 knots and has a range of 2256 statute miles.
