FLIGHTWORKS EARNS US DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE (DOD)
AIR TRANSPORTATION APPROVAL

Atlanta, GA -- Feb. 26, 2008 – FlightWorks Inc. has received approval from the Department of Defense for its Air Transportation Program after passing a rigorous on-site audit, including inspections, aircraft and crew performance evaluations. The December 2007 audit was performed by the DoD Air Carrier Survey and Analysis Office, U.S. Air Force Headquarters, Air Mobility Command (AMC).

The DoD approval was unanimously granted after the audit report documented zero (0) findings. A ‘finding’ is a documented statement based on factual evidence that indicates an air operator is not in conformity with FAA regulations, DOT guidelines and referenced ICAO standards. Ongoing monitoring of performance-based assessment factors will be conducted, as applicable to all approved air carriers, to maintain approval to transport DoD personnel and contractors.

FlightWorks Director of Government Services, Cynthia Karnik, led the initiative to meet the Department of Defense’s need for approved air carriers. “I believe our safety-focused initiatives and strict adherence to our ISO processes and procedures was clearly evident in this audit which revealed zero (0) findings,” said Ms. Karnik. “This approval further validates the expertise and dedication of FlightWorks’ management team, all of whom contributed their time, leadership and expertise to our success.”
